Happy Anniversary

Fifty years have passed since Charles and Ray Eames created a midcentury modern icon—the Eames lounge chair and ottoman (above). In celebration of the anniversary, the Eames Foundation is offering a limited edition rosewood chair and ottoman produced by Herman Miller and upholstered in Edelman kid leather. For $6,500, half of which is tax-deductible, the foundation will also provide a one-year membership, an Eames print and two tickets to a guided interior tour of the Eames House in Pacific Palisades, California. EAMES FOUNDATION, 310.459.9663, www.eamesfoundation.org

Glass Appeal

"Glass brings an element of sheen and sparkle to a room that nothing else can," says Dallas designer Jan Showers. Her debut collection of glass tabletop items (left and below), sold exclusively through Neiman Marcus, comprises seven designs that are all handblown, signed and numbered on Murano, Italy. The vases, bowls and bottles, which come in gold or peridot with twenty-two-karat gold inclusions, were inspired by vintage pieces, "but these are more modern in spirit," says Showers. NEIMAN MARCUS, 888.888.4757, www.neimanmarcus.com

A St. Regis Escape

"It's sophisticated and relaxing and has a touch of glamour," says Barbara Mullen of the new Remède Spa at the St. Regis Resort, Aspen, that she designed with her husband, Richard. For the sleek interior, the couple, who head up Poss Interior Design, aimed to create "a mountain environment without clichés," says Richard Mullen. Their point is made in the spa's reception area (above), where an unexpected chandelier from Paul Ferrante punctuates the warm wood-paneled space. REMÈDE SPA AT ST. REGIS RESORT, ASPEN, 315 E.
